

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES .
REVISED VERSION
ARRANGED IN PARAGRAPHS.

I.--<sup>1</sup>The former narrative, Theophilus, I composed, of all that Jesus began both to do and to teach, <sup>2</sup>even to the day, on which he was taken up, after that he, through the Holy Spirit had given commandment to the Apostles whom he had chosen; <sup>3</sup>to whom also he showed himself alive, after his suffering, in many convincing proofs, during forty days appearing to them, and speaking of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God; <sup>4</sup>and having convened them together, he commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem; but to await the gift promised them by the Father, which, says he, you have heard from me: <sup>5</sup>for John indeed immersed in water, but you shall be immersed in the Holy Spirit, not many days hence.

This same Jesus, who is taken from you into the heaven, shall so come, in like manner, as you have seen him going into the heaven. <sup>12</sup>Then they returned into Jerusalem, from a mount called Olivet, from Jerusalem, a sabbath-day's journey. <sup>13</sup>And when they had entered, they went up into the upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James, son of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas, the brother of James. <sup>14</sup>These were all persevering with one consent, in prayer and supplication, with women, with Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brothers.

<sup>15</sup>And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said (the number of the names together being about one hundred
